HOWELL-BARKLEY BILL HAS SOLID BACKING OF LABOR WOULD HAVE MEDIATION BODY IN PLACE OF LABOR BOARD. VETO IS DOUBTFUL

Public Represented on Big Conciliation Bureau of Five Members.

Washington—Organized labor has lined up solidly behind the Howell-Barkley bill which proposes to abolish the United States labor board and substitute for it a board of mediation and conciliation.

Friends of President Coolidge have been saying in the last few days that he would veto the bill but there is a general misunderstanding about its provisions and if it should pass both houses of congress a veto may be said to be doubtful.

The writer erroneously stated a few days ago that the Howell-Barkley bill would eliminate the representatives of the public and leave railway disputes to be decided by the interested parties. The truth is the representatives of the employees (Continued on page 14)

AUTOMOBILE IS CAUSE OF THIS DIVORCE

Now comes the divorced home because of the wife's fondness for the motor car.

David Murray, Janesville, obtained a divorce from his wife, Lena M. Austin Murray, on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment, following a hearing before Judge John Grinnell Monday afternoon in the Rock county circuit court. The wife obtained an inheritance several years ago and the husband testified she used much of it for motor cars.

"She never home," alleged the husband, and it was testified there were three children. "Instead of being home, she's always away with the car."

The divorce was granted.

Emma Whiting, Janesville, was granted a divorce from her husband, George H. Whiting, on the grounds of cruelty and non-support. The Whiting's were divorced several years ago but a compromise was effected and by mutual consent the divorce was set aside within the year period.

"He didn't improve any or keep his pledge," testified the wife. "They were married in Madison, Feb. 2, 1909."

SENATOR TO ATLANTIC CITY

Washington—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin who is recovering from an attack of pneumonia left yesterday for Atlantic City, with Mrs. La Follette to complete his convalescence. He is expected to return to Washington in about two weeks to resume his work in the senate.

It's Your Turn to Turn Away the Crowd!

It's a wonderful feeling! No—not to gulp some of the headache medicine that's become so popular since pneumonia started to turn away the crowd.

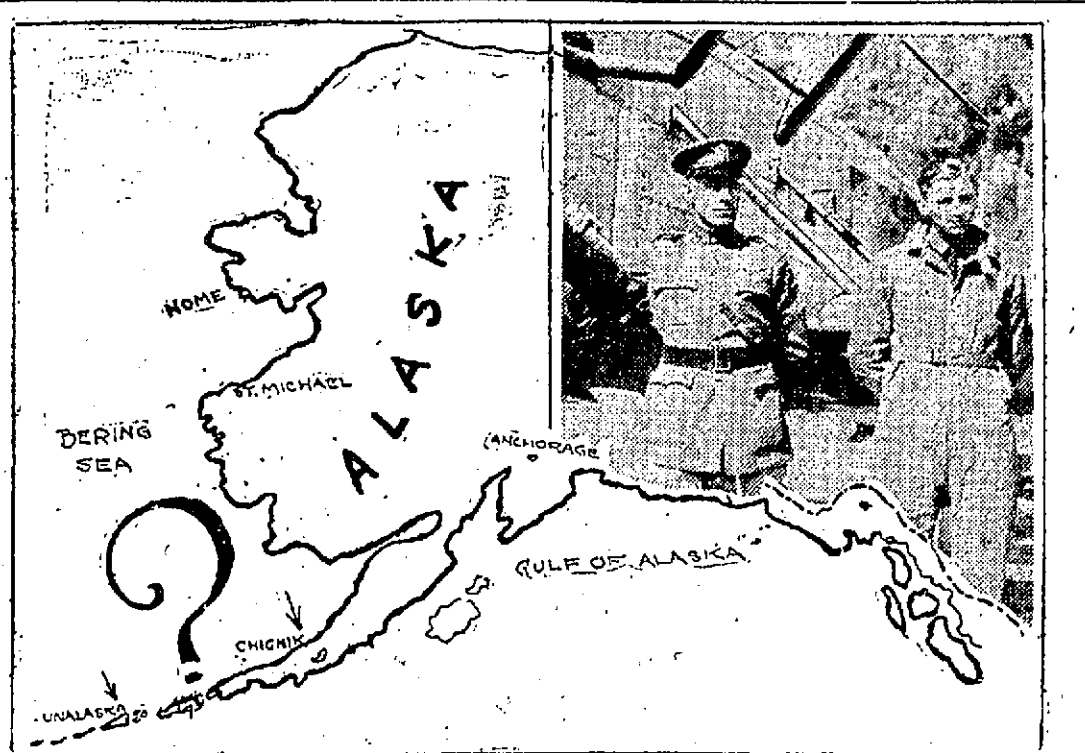

Plenty of great musicians, noted orators, and fight promoters have had that feeling—to shut the door while thousands clamor.

They're turning 'em away now in Janesville—at the home of persons advertising in "The Gazette's" classified section.

Mrs. Tiscornia, 215 Center avenue, inserted a classified ad the other day offering a cook stove for sale. She had "bushes" of calls and could not have sold twenty stoves if she had had them.

When YOU want to hear "round YOUR door"—call 2300.

WHERE MISSING WORLD FLYERS VANISHED

Major Frederick L. Martin (left) with his mechanic, Sergeant Alva Harvey, in front of their plane, and a map of Alaska showing where the commander of the round-the-world flight of the U. S. army is missing.

Destroyers of the United States navy, added by Alaskan fishing boats, are searching the north Pacific ocean south of the Alaska peninsula between Chignik and Pabla Pass, where shore parties are hunting in the Alaskan mountains west of Chignik, for the missing plane of Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the round-the-world flight.

Behind the other fliers, Martin was caught by a storm described by old settlers as the worst in years, and he and Harvey may have been hurled into the sea and drowned, but hopes are entertained that they were able to take refuge in one of the many uncharted coves along the wild coast. It may be days before they are found.

GERMAN COALITION SAFE BY NARROW RECOUNT MARGIN

[RE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Berlin—An official account of the returns from Sunday's elections for the Reichstag, announced at noon today, concludes the united socialists 100 votes, the nationalists 95, the center party or clericals 62, the democrats 25, the communists 22, the people's party 44 and the Bavarian people's party 15.

The big coalition, comprising the socialists, clericals, democrats and peoples party, which will command a slight majority which will be safeguarded by ten votes from the middle class league and the Bavarian people's party.

The parliamentary leaders admit that the situation is not yet wholly clarified, but they view any coalition not including the socialists as a remote possibility, unless the nationalists make an unequivocal announcement of their complete concurrence with the Dawes report and give up their support for the foreign policies inaugurated and pursued by the present government.

The preponderance of opinion in political circles indicates the coalition of the new government will be composed of the three middle parties now in office, with the active support of the socialists vouchsafed for it, or that a straight four-party government, comprising the socialists and present parties in power, will succeed the Marx-Stresemann cabinet. None of the latter parties is inclined to join the nationalists in a Bourgeois government.

DEMOCRATS IN DOUBT AS TO ADJOURNMENT

Washington—Democratic leaders of the senate decided in conference today that there is too much important legislation remaining unpassed to determine at this time whether an adjournment of congress before the national political conventions would be wise.

There has been a division of opinion among the democrats both in the senate and house as to whether adjournment "should be permitted before the time of the republican convention at Cleveland."

Republican leaders have indicated a desire to adjourn by June 1, and have informed the president that this will be possible.

SECRECY CLAUSE VALIDITY ARGUED IN SUPREME COURT

TEST CASE, BROUGHT BY JUNEAU, ATTACKS STATUTE. INJURY CHARGED Infringes on Rights of Individual, Claim; State Denies Contentions.

Madison—Validity of the secrecy clause of the state income tax law, passed by the 1923 legislature, was argued before the state supreme court today in a test case brought by William J. Juneau of Milwaukee. Contention of the statute, which was advocated by Governor Blaine, was attacked by attorneys for Juneau in their arguments before the court.

It was contended by the plaintiff that the secrecy clause infringes upon the constitutional rights of the individual and does irreparable injury to his personal business. The contention of the plaintiff was sustained by Judge E. V. Werner, circuit judge, sitting in Juneau county.

The state's legal contentions were as follows:

1. The court erred in finding that unrestricted disclosure of income tax returns will not benefit the state in the enforcement of revenue laws nor assist in assessment and collection of taxes.
2. The court erred in holding that there is danger that the plaintiff may suffer injury in his credit and conduct of his business affairs.
3. The constitutional rights of the individual are not infringed or violated by disclosure of income tax returns.

It was argued by Assistant Attorney General J. E. Messerschmidt, representing the state, that the basic principle of law that public records may be inspected. He further declared that the legislature did not exceed its authority in enacting that secrecy clause law.

For of Fraud, Claim

Benefits to be obtained from such a law, he asserted, include the following: such disclosure might be a deterrent to the taxpayer from filing fraudulent or incorrect income tax reports; it will protect the state and people from mistakes or frauds of officials; mistakes or frauds could make decisions based on facts or data which could not be examined by the public and none would know whether the findings are consistent and equally fair to all parties.

The case is considered highly important as it was one of the main issues in the last legislative and the law has attracted wide attention.

WARRANT NEEDED FOR DRY SEARCH OF WHOLESALERS

Madison—Soft drink establishments, licensed to sell non-intoxicating beverages by wholesale, cannot be searched by state prohibition agents without a search warrant, the attorney general's department ruled today in an interpretation of liquor laws of chapter 221, laws of 1923.

The opinion was given to Herman W. Saatchian, state prohibition commissioner.

Licensees licensed to sell non-intoxicating drinks at retail only, however, can be searched without warrants, the legal department declared.

Provisions for which a license is granted to sell non-intoxicating liquors at wholesale only, may not be searched by an officer who is not armed with a search warrant, the opinion stated.

The ruling was issued in connection with searches made by state agents at Oconomowoc. The department has ruled that licensees issued for the sale of non-intoxicating liquors by the town of Plymouth under an ordinance passed prior to the amendments to the liquor laws of chapter 221, laws of 1923, should be considered valid.

The opinion was written by Assistant Attorney General Messerschmidt.

O'LEARY CASE IS BACK FOR TRIAL

Through a ruling of the Wisconsin supreme court made public Tuesday, the case of the State vs. Hugh O'Leary, town of Rock, reverts back to the municipal court of Janesville for trial after several months of litigation in the higher courts. O'Leary is charged with liquor possession.

The supreme court held that no appeal can be taken to the supreme court in criminal cases, but only on writs of error, and dismissed the case against O'Leary for lack of jurisdiction.

O'Leary was arrested twice last year following raids on his place by the sheriff's office. At the time of his second arrest, his attorney, E. H. Ryan, asked for a dismissal of the case on the grounds that he was being placed twice in jeopardy for the same offense, which he held was a violation of the constitution. The state filed a demurrer, which was sustained, and the action was then appealed to the supreme court by the defendant.

COOLIDGE OPPOSED TO AMENDMENTS IN U. S. UPPER HOUSE

DOUBT OF CONCURRENCE IN LOWER CHAMBER IS EXPRESSED. DEADLOCK FEARED Democrat-Insurgent Coalition Adopts Surtax Rates at First Turned Down.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Washington, D. C.—Veto of the tax bill in its form as amended in the senate, is generally foreseen in all official circles here.

On the other hand, it is also believed the house will not concur in the tax bill after the senate changes. Looking for a deadlock or veto-causes leaders of the republican forces to feel that there may be no tax legislation at all before adjournment.

The democrats were enabled to secure the surtax rates which, had been voted down in the house by a coalition with the insurgent republican senators and Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborer, to give them the 43 votes a majority over the three against the republican opposition. But there are enough democrats in the house, who would not follow the party leadership, to carry the measure.

Edwards of New Jersey and Bruce of Maryland, democrats, voted with the republican minority.

SEVERAL AMENDMENTS OPPOSED BY PRESIDENT

[RE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Senate organization republicans agreed at a conference today to seek a compromise on the democratic surtax rates voted into the revenue bill yesterday, at a maximum rate of 22 per cent, and if this fails, to go to 37 1-2 per cent, the house denying relief sought.

The republican insurgents who made possible the democratic victory yesterday were not present at the conference.

The compromise move will be made when the bill is up for final passage. Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, demanded that an effort be made for the 22 per cent rate while the house schedule then was agreed upon as the next and last step in the compromise maneuver.

THE MAN

In a contest for the capital prize in the creation of wholesome stage humor it isn't likely there would be but a single entry, and that one, the infallible star, RAYMOND HITCHCOCK. To the theatre-going public of the entire country, and even of conservative London, where he has received the homage of King and commoner, the endearing sobriquet, "Hitchy," unqualifiedly conveys par in popular stage diversion. "Hitchy" is coming to town in a slogan that invariably tests the capacity of the theatre, and this season the event is made doubly important in the announcement that the famous comedian will be seen in Don Marquis' year-long New York laugh, "The Old Soak."

THE PLAY

"The Old Soak" is the story of an American who admits that "cheridly runs in our family".... the story of a loveable and shifless hero whose happy philosophy of life provides joyful amusement.

RIVERSIDE PARK FROG IS FRIDAY

Raking Bee and Clean-Up to Be Followed by Free
Lunch.

City Manager Henry Traxler announced the appointment, Tuesday, of a committee to plan and conduct a raking bee and clean-up of Riverside park Friday afternoon. A public spirited citizen to plan the great event, not only to work, but to take part in the general festivities and to become better acquainted with the immense potential value of the public park.

"We want to gather up all the rubbish into piles and burn it," explained Mr. Traxler. "For that reason, the only equipment to bring along will be a pile of brush axes and shovels, because we might do some injury to the standing trees."

The day will start at 1 p. m. but workers will be eligible to service no matter what time they get to the park. Women of the church, club and the Catholic women's club have volunteered to serve coffee and doughnuts at the end of the day's work, probably about 5 p. m.

Boys and girls may bring wieners and marshmallows and have roasts. No. 4 truck of the fire department will be sent out to the park for the afternoon to prevent the bonfires from spreading.

All men's and women's civic and patriotic organizations are being urged to attend and co-operate. The matter is being taken up this week with the various clubs and there are indications of a large turnout for the day, which will be in the nature of a city-wide observance of Arbor day, which has been set for Friday, May 10.

Mr. Traxler is referring to it as a "hoofing bee."

Get Acquainted with Park

While admitting a general desire on the part of the city to get the property in good condition for the coming summer, Mr. Traxler declared the main purpose of the Friday event is to get the public acquainted with the park and to recognize the possibilities for all sorts of recreational facilities.

"Eventually, we can provide facilities for every kind of winter and summer sports and amusements," he said. "We can provide every form of recreation, such as baseball, tennis, swimming, boating, fishing, golf, toboggan slides, skating, and general playgrounds."

Avon Will Have Play Day May 15

Twenty-two persons representing five school districts were present at the play day organization meeting held in Avon village school Monday night. The district representatives met to discuss the proposition to hold a township play day and the date selected is May 15.

Officers were elected as follows: chairman, Albert Cox; secretary, Miss Ruppette Knudson; treasurer, John Johnson; committee chairman, stand, Orson Green; grounds, Ross Heath; games, Doll Green; cats, Mrs. L. Schmidt; program, Miss Cora Thompson. Each chairman will appoint one or more persons from each club to assist with the work of the respective committees.

"Old Soak" Seats on Sale Tonight

Exchanging of reserved seats for the "Old Soak" celebrated play featuring Raymond Hitchcock, giving a performance at the high school auditorium Thursday night, under the auspices of the Janesville Lions club, closed at 7 p. m. Tuesday at Grebe and Newman's. The tickets purchased from Lions members may be reserved there any time up to Thursday night.

With about two-thirds of the tickets sold the Lions club members are concentrating on securing a full house, as the hope is entertained to swell the club fund for memorial to the city's soldiers who served in the World war.

In honor of Raymond Hitchcock, the Lions club will hold its weekly luncheon Thursday instead of Wednesday and at the Myers hotel. The wives of Lions club members will also be guests and an especially fine program is expected to be given. The luncheon will be at 12:15.

The cast of the show supporting Mr. Hitchcock is reported to be the New York cast, and the play written by John M. Hartigan has been acclaimed everywhere it has been given, as rivaling "Lightnin'" while some critics have pronounced it as a comedy better than that famous by the late Frank Brown.

The Chamber of Commerce.
 Opening of the canvass for membership in the Chamber of Commerce began today with a general solicitation among the business men and others of the city. It seems that it is hardly necessary for a canvass. The Chamber of Commerce is as much a part of the civic life of Janesville as is the city council or any of the other coordinate bodies upon which we rely for administration of municipal affairs.

While the Chamber has no standing as an administrative body created by law yet it is a quasi-official organization with a definite work to perform. It can do all the many things which lie just outside the official cognizance and is the clearing house for public movements and organized effort toward community betterment. Besides that, it has a real job in a number of lines helpful to the business activities in all branches, retail and wholesale, manufacturing and professional. From a financial point of view the Chamber of Commerce has been operated most successfully in the past year. From a deficit there has been a balance in the bank, the debit side of the ledger has been changed to a credit. And with the new spirit that will come with the new membership, there cannot help but follow a series of activities helpful for the city.

No city can afford to be without a Chamber of Commerce. There must be a responsible place for both information and action. It is a center of leadership and every community needs that.
 The greater and stronger the Chamber, the better
 it may be able to function.

Janesville is in leadership in its Chamber of Commerce and should maintain that position.

The oil scandal began way back when Samuel Johnston the head of Saul. The senate should investigate this.

Just From the Business Standpoint.
 Henry Schott is a business man. He was vice president of Montgomery Ward & Co., and now is president of the Seaman Paper Co. In the current issue of the Nation's Business he writes of a trip to Europe this year. He is a keen observer and has the happy faculty, not always a gift of the business man, of setting forth these observations in a pleasant and readable manner.
 Of the steamer—it was the Lapland, an 18,000
 ton liner—he says, "The bar business is a terrible disappointment. Even on the first day out that mad rush of thirsty Americans did not matterialize. It is really discouraging. No merry voices telling each other to 'drink her down,' no elbowing to say 'Now this one is on me.' . . .
 What has come over the American business man?
 Has he so far forgotten himself that he no longer knows how to sink 20 or 30 drinks a day when good stuff is right there waiting for him? . . .
 Can it possibly be that drinking is becoming somewhat, say disreputable in America?"

Which leads back to the expression from Nicholas Murray Butler that the prohibition of liquor is a moral question. Wherein we beg to differ.
 It may be a question of law and all questions of law are in a greater or lesser degree moral ones,
 but paramountly it is a question of economics.
 So long as the restraint of liquor was placed before the public as a moral question alone it was left to the churches, the pulpits and the temperance societies and organizations for its settlement.
 What finally placed prohibition on the statute books was the realization by the American people that the nation was being destroyed by the saloon and drink; that the impairment was growing more and more and that the national ruin was certain through that channel.

Next to this economic phase of the liquor question, the other element that put it out of business, is the one which the Butlers and others are now using—political. The saloon built up a great political machine, regardless of party affiliation, principles or what-not—it was always for the saloon and was the first powerful political bloc which we knew in the United States. It is a moral question just as the liberties of the people to worship God according to one's own ideas, is a moral question. The saloon with its backers, the brewers and the distillers, rode rough shod over the people, arrogant and domineering. That is why they were put out of business and why the business men of the nation joined hands with thousands of others and made prohibition a statutory law.

And out of this has come the fact, as stated by Mr. Schott, that drinking is more or less disreputable in America. It will grow more so. Not all dry advocates are total abstainers, perhaps; not all wet advocates are drunkards. When Gabe Bouck was a democratic candidate for congress up in the Oshkosh district in the '70's, he used to say that while "all republicans were not horse thieves he was certain that all horse thieves were republicans." But Col. Gabe was a fierce democrat, so he might have been prejudiced.

Prof. Butler is like Gabe Bouck, Al Smith, Tammany, the average New Yorker, the ancient cave man, who saw many things and took no heed.
 For instance, there are several thousand less saloons in New York than before prohibition. There are fewer cases of poverty. The facts as collected by the welfare departments prove this beyond cavil. There are more savings accounts. Even right here in Janesville there are more savings accounts than ever in the banking history. It is a universal condition. Liquor may be a moral question.

THE PARIS OLYMPIC GAMES

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Forty countries, represented by 6,000 athletes, are expected to compete in the 1924 Olympic games at Paris in June and July, thus making this the greatest athletic event in the world's history.

Singularly enough Greece, the country where Olympics originated and were conducted for 16 centuries, will not participate at Paris. All the other important nations of the earth save Germany will be represented. Austria and Bulgaria are sending teams and it was proposed to invite Germany as evidence that old war scars have been healed, but the committee in charge decided adversely. Germany could not appear at Antwerp in 1920, and it was deemed inadvisable to welcome her back into the world sport arena until the 1928 Olympics at Los Angeles.

The United States will have 225 contestants in the various events. The advance guard of the American invasion that hopes to carry off the world athletic honors again has already left for France, the members of the rugby team having left on April 5. The six marathon runners will leave on the Leithan on May 24, and on June 16 is the main body of the American host will sail on the America, which has been specially chartered for it.

Thousands of aspiring athletes are now in training in the United States for the Olympics, in colleges, athletic clubs, the army and the navy.
 It is the expressed desire of the Amateur Athletic Union and the Amateur Olympic committee that every amateur in the country be given a chance to make a place on the team, and preliminary try-outs will be held in eight different sections.
 Decoration day, May 31, and June 7 are the dates recommended for these preliminaries, which will be held in New York, Birmingham or Atlanta, Detroit or Chicago, Kansas City, New Orleans, Portland, Ore., San Francisco and Los Angeles. College athletes who win places in recognized championship contests will be required to compete in these try-outs, however.

The final contests for candidates for places on the American team will be held at Harvard on June 13 and 14, and two days later the America will sail from New York. The team will be accompanied by a corps of coaches, headed by Lawson Robertson, of Pennsylvania, and by chaplains for women tennis players and swimmers. Accompanions on the transport that are not required for the official party will be sold to friends and members of the families of competitors and to contributors to the Olympic fund.

The athletes will keep in training during the ocean trip, and as the liner is scheduled to arrive in Cherbourg on June 24, the team will have two weeks for final work-outs before the games open.

The Chateau de Rouenoucourt, about 20 miles from Paris, has been rented from Prince Murat as the headquarters for the American team. Besides the chateau itself, a number of ten-room houses will be built in the grounds and equipped with electric lights, showers and all needed conveniences. American cooks are to be taken along in order to make sure that our athletes will not be disturbed by any change in diet.

The sending of the team is far from an inexpensive matter, it being estimated that it will cost at least $1,000 for each of the 225 members. This money will be raised by subscription.
 Most of the Americans who started at Antwerp four years ago, carrying off 212 points as against 105 for Finland, which surprised everybody by winning second honors, will be in the lists this year at Paris. "Conspicuous among them will be Charlie Paddock, the whirlwind runner, and Laren Murchison, who is rated by many as the greatest sprinter in the world. John Joseph, the Illinois runner who is pre-eminent at middle distances, will also be there, as will Dick Landon, who won the running high jump championship in 1920.

Other American notables include Pat McEn-rold, winner of the 1920 Olympic title in the 56-pound weight throw; Allan Woodring, 200 meter champion; Allan Helfrich of Penn State college, runner in the 600-meter race; Eugene Johnson of Pittsburgh, 10,000 meter runner; Matt McGrath of New York, hammer thrower; Ralph Hills of Princeton, shot putter; Augustus Pope of the Illinois Athletic Club, discus thrower; William Plant and Joseph Pearson of New York, long distance runners; and Jim Connelly, of Newark, middle distance runner.

Every one of the 6,000 competitors at Paris will be required to subscribe to the Olympic pledge or oath, which reads:

"We swear that we are taking part in the Olympic games as loyal competitors, serving the rules governing the games, and eager to show a spirit of chivalry, for the honor of our countries and for the glory of sport."

In preparation for the games, France has erected a monster stadium at Colombes, on the Seine near Paris. It is 350 metres long by 250 in width, with a running track of 8 metres wide and 500
 metres—about 525 yards—around. The expense of erecting it consumed almost all the appropriation of 10,000,000 francs made by the government
 of France for the games. The stadium at Athens,
 restored for the Olympics in 1896, was 178 metres
 long and 82 metres wide. That of ancient Olympia,
 built to light by archaeologists, was 192
 metres long.

The Colombes stadium has grandstands on either side that will seat 10,000 spectators each,
 and at each end are uncovered places for 20,000 making a total seating capacity of 60,000, not including the boxes.

The first events of the Olympics at Colombes will be the rugby and soccer matches, starting on May 2. The soccer matches will be 90 minutes long. It is 50 metres long by 250 in width,
 with a running track of 8 metres wide and 500
 metres—about 525 yards—around. The expense
 of erecting it consumed almost all the appropriation
 of 10,000,000 francs made by the government
 of France for the games. The stadium at Athens,
 restored for the Olympics in 1896, was 178 metres
 long and 82 metres wide. That of ancient Olympia,
 built to light by archaeologists, was 192
 metres long.

The winter events of the Olympic games—skiing, skating, hockey and similar sports—were held at Chamoni last January. The United States did not make a strong showing there, ranking fourth. Norway swept the field, with Finland second and England third. The points scored in the winter sports, however, are not counted in the nation's total in the Olympics.

It is expected that there will be fully 2,000 Americans in attendance during the games in the Colombes stadium. The American Olympic committee has had a section of 500 seats reserved in one of the grandstands, but with the great number of tourists from the United States that will be in France this summer it is not thought that this reservation will take care of a fourth of those who will want to be present each day. In all, it is estimated that from 50,000 to 75,000
 Americans will witness the games.

Parisians are preparing for a great influx of visitors and it is promised that they will see to it that their guests are not made the victims of pro-fitting or extortion. That, as the members of the last American Expeditionary force in France would say, "listens good."

Magnus Johnson has had his picture taken as a glass blower. That's better than his colleagues as hot air blowers.

England would probably deny that she could pay the debt she owes to the United States from the profits of her rum runners.

Cyclones are made from hot air and vacuum.
 That is why we have more of them in presidential election years.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

BRILLIANCE.
 The comet speeds across the sky,
 A brilliant and a dazzling light;
 It holds a little time the eye,
 Then swiftly passes out of sight.

But steadfastly the planets stay
 And keep their places through the night,
 Holding onto the charted way,
 Contented with a lesser light.

So it will men who flash and glow
 And live their swift and brilliant hour;
 Like comets, they, too, come and go,
 With neither lasting place nor power.

But men who follow chartered ways,
 Content the lesser joys to gain,
 Who keep the faith through troubled days
 Like planets steadfastly remain.

HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1924.

After the early morning hours there should be a fortunate day according to astrology. Saturn and Venus are in benefic aspect.

This should be a most encouraging day for farmers and all who draw their income directly from the land.

For those seeking the marketing of produce should be somewhat improved before the autumn, but there may be heavy losses through unseasonable weather or bad storms.

Real estate transactions are subject to a good deal of delay during the summer months.

Labor comes under a favorable way which seems to promise improved conditions for women wage-earners.

The aged will find new energy during this government of the stars, as is predicted, and their counsel will be sought.

Women should benefit from this configuration which gives promise of the fulfillment of their heart's best desires.

It is a lucky wedding day, making for cooperation and understanding.

Hotels will prosper more and more, if the signs are read aright for they are to be more patronized than ever before.

There is an aspect which makes for success for women's clubs, which will unite on some great national issue, or ally themselves with a movement of supreme moment.

Chances of amusement should benefit today, especially if they present attractions of a high standard.

Education is subject to the best possible direction of the stars which promise extraordinary attendance at all the summer schools.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of a busy year, in which their ambitious plans will work out rather slowly.

Children will prosper more and more, if the signs are read aright for they are to be more
 patronized than ever before.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

If Uncle George made the medicine cabinet strictly according to the plans and specifications I laid down at the beginning of this series of talks we've been having about the management of minor life and emergencies, he provided two or three empty pigeon holes or spaces between the phenolphthalein and the salicylic powders, both of which we discussed last time, the medicine, not the holes, on you have probably forgotten—or if you did cut it out somebody went and used it for a shaving paper or to light his pipe. Let us take advantage of these empty spaces and make sure just how we ought to go about reuniting a person who is overcome by gas, smoke, suffocation, carbon monoxide from the exhaust of an automobile, or one who is apparently drowned or shocked by electricity. In other words, how to perform—a word I hate, so let us say rather how to do artificial respiration. Such knowledge naturally belongs to the physical side, so it is a sad but hor-ribly common occurrence for poorly educated people to stand by idly and watch a life slip away. A precious life elms away for want of just a little knowledge such as any boy Scout or any Girl Scout has; God bless the men and women who gave us the Scouts.

Let us impress upon you as forcibly as possible three things which apply in any drowning emergency or whenever resuscitation or artificial respiration is to be used.

1. Don't look for a barrel.
 2. Don't look for "the arm."
 3. Don't wait for a pump or other apparatus to arrive.

The most effective method of inducing or restoring the breathing, more effective than any pump, and at the same time the simplest and least laborious to apply, is the method of Schaefer, otherwise called the prone pressure method. Schaefer's method, moreover, is less likely to injure the subject than is a pump or lung motor or the old-fashioned arm pumping method. As Schaefer describes it:

"It consists in laying the subject in the prone position, preferably on the ground, with a thick folded garment or blanket or pillow underneath the chest and epistomium. The operator kneels on the right side of the head of the subject, facing his head, and places his hands on each side over the lower part of the back (lowest ribs).
 He then slowly thrusts the weight of his body forward to bear upon his own arms, and thus presses up the thorax of the subject and forces air out of the lungs. This being effected, he slowly thrusts his arms back, by bringing his own body up again to a more erect position but without moving the hands."

This simple movement is repeated regularly at the rate of 15 times a minute, and then kept up without interruption.

Q. What element is lacking in garden soil which grows turnips, with luxuriant leaves and no turnips?
 A. Nitrogen.

Q. The department of agriculture says the soil contains too much nitrogen and needs potash and phosphoric acid. You should use 10 pounds to 100 square feet, mixing equal parts of acid phosphate and muriate of potash.

Q. From what part of the tree is secured walnut meat? I. H.
 A. In the average tree, the only place where a decided figure is found is in the seed, which is the kernel.
 The kernel is the part of the seed also made from large growths, known as burrs, which may be found occasionally on the trees. All these pieces of wood are used as veneers.

Q. What is the difference between a guardian and a trustee?
 A. A guardian is always an actual person, while a trustee may be a trust company or other corporation.
 Q. Why won't trees grow well in a town where soft coal smoke and dust are in evidence?
 A. The department of agriculture says the soft coal smoke deposits a coating of carbon and coal ash upon the leaves of trees which interferes with the natural functioning of the breathing pores of the leaves.
 Smoke, in fact, such as from over-greases, suffer most because of the coal smoke deposit that lies in close contact with the leaf surface. The heavy soft coal covering of some other trees prevent the forming of a compact coating over the leaf surfaces. Such trees endure a smoky atmosphere much longer.

Q. What are the requirements for jury service?
 A. To serve on a grand jury a man must be 21 years of age but under 65, must be able to read, write, and understand English, must be a citizen of the United States and a resident of the county within which the jury is to act, and must not have been convicted of any crime involving moral turpitude.

The Four Stragglers

Copyright, 1923, Geo. H. Doran Co., Serialized by Leader Syndicate.

CAPTAIN FRANCIS NEWCOMBE, ex-officer in the great war, who breaks into society, and who really is shadowy, noted figure of underworld, and in charge of various big steals that have set London agog.

PAUL CREMARRE, noted French thief, who has met Newcombe in the underworld, and who was along with RUNNELLS, a valet, who had done some big thefts on his own account, and THE FOURTH STRAGGLER, who hears the croak agree to combine after the armistice, and who disappears.

PAUL WICKES, a flower-girl, whom Newcombe has adopted and sent to America to a finishing school, with the idea of making her a countess of the best before he leaves England, after executing some, his plans. She is the friend of DONALD MARLIN, daughter of an eccentric millionaire, and her guest on a big show place on the Florida coast.

MR. MARLIN, the mad millionaire, has buried more than half a million dollars in the existence of which Newcombe learns inadvertently from his beautiful ward.

HOWARD LOCKE, son of a big business man, who takes Newcombe and Runnels to Florida on his yacht. He falls in love with Polly.

"No; he was not to late! He had reached the front corner of the house where in the open space it was a little lighter, something, a blacker thing than the darkness, moving swiftly, caught his eye. It was the figure of a man, a man in a dark suit, in the direction of the path that led to the shore, and from which old Mr. Marlin had emerged earlier in the evening. And now the figure was gone—out in the trees. But he, Locke, too, was running now, sprinting for all he knew across the lawn. It was perhaps sixty yards, there was no time to use caution and circuit, warily around the edge of the woods. He might be seen—but he had to take that chance. He would not be heard—the soft grass and the wind guaranteed him against that. It was a little better than an even break. The figure he had seen was not, he was sure, that of the old man. The long, flowing dressing gown would, even in a shadowy way, have been distinguishable. If he were right, then, in his supposition, the figure he had seen was that of the man, and old Mr. Marlin was already in there on the path leading through the woods to the shore.

A cry, sudden, like a scream that was strangled, came with the gust of the wind. It came again, from the edge of the lawn now, Locke leaped forward along the path. Black, twisting shapes loomed up just ahead of him. He flung himself upon them.

A low, startled, vicious snarl answered his attack. After that there was no sound while perhaps a minute, save the rustle of leaves and foliage, the snarl of broken twigs under swiftly moving, straining feet. Locke was fighting now with merciless, exultant ferocity. It was the man in the mask he was at grips with—it was not the dressing gown alone, the feet of it, that distinguished one from the other; he had even in that first plunging rush in the darkness felt his hand brush against the mask on the man's cheek.

It was all shadow, all blackness. To this side and that, close locked together, he and his antagonist snarled maddly. The man's own evident desire was to break away from his, Locke's endearing arms; his, Locke's purpose was to keep him close, to smother the other—the moon might come out again at any instant—filter through the branches, just enough light to see the other's face if the mask were off.

A peal of laughter rang out. It was the old madman, Locke, as he fought, more sensed than saw the old man's face, and the other, as though the other were groping around on his hands and knees. The peal of laughter came again; and then the old man's voice in a triumphant scream.

"I've got it! I've got it! Money! Money! Millions! Millions! Millions! It's all here! I've got it! It's all here! The money was in the distance, Locke laughed, a little with grim, panting breath. Whether it had been dropped or had been snatched from him in the first attack, old Mr. Marlin had now obviously recovered his package of bank notes. He was gone now—running to hide it again, of course. In any event, the old man and his money were safe, and—

His antagonist had wrenched free an arm. Locke's head jerked back suddenly from a wicked short-arm blow that caught the point of his chin. A sensation of numbness seemed to be trying insidiously to creep upward to his brain—but it did not reach that far—not quite that far—only it loosened his grip for an instant and the shadowy form that he had held appeared to be floating away from him. And then, his brain cleared, he shot his body forward in a low, lunging tackle. The other almost eluded him, but his hands caught and clung to the man's arm, both around one of the other's arms. The man wrenched and squirmed in a savage frenzy to tear himself free. There was a sound of the ripping and rending of cloth as something slipped away from him. A white shirt sleeve! It was a flash Locke shifted his hold, and his arm swept around the other, pinning the man's hands to his sides—lighter—lighter. Neither spoke. The only sounds were hoarse, rasping gasps for breath. Tighter! He was bending the man backward now—slowly—surely—a little more. No—the man was too strong—the pinioned arms were free again; and Locke felt them grip together like vice around the small of his own back.

They lurched now, away from side to side like drunken men. The mask! To get at the mask! They were locked together, the chin of one on the other's shoulder—straining until the muscles cracked. Locke began to raise his head a little. The hot breath of the other was on his cheek now—and now his cheek rubbed against the other's mask.

An oath broke suddenly from the man—quick, muttered, the voice unrecognizable in its labored breathing and the other, seeming to sense his grip, snatched for a threshold instead, and, missing, began then to tear at Locke's arms in an effort to break away.

And then Locke laughed again grimly. It would avail nothing to snatch at the mask and get it off in the darkness here, by no doing with his own hold on the other gone, the man should get away. There was another way to get the mask off—and still maintain his grip upon the other.

They were holding now, seemingly as motionless as statues, the strength of one matched against the other in a supreme effort. The sweat broke out in great beads on Locke's forehead; his arms seemed to be tearing away from their sockets. He could feel the muscles in the other's neck, as it surged against his own, swell and stand out like great steel ridges. And then slowly, inch by inch, he forced his own head around until his face was against the other's cheek. He could just feel the mask now with his lips—another inch—yes, now he had it—his teeth closed on the lower edge of the mask, chewed at it until he had a still firmer grip—and then he suddenly wrenched his head backward.

The mask came away in Locke's teeth. "He snatched it out. The man was a man gone mad with fury now; and with a new strength that fury brought he strove only to strike and strike again—but Locke only closed his hold the tighter. To strike back was to take the chance of the other breaking loose. It was too dark to see the man's face, though the mask was off now—but it could only be a few yards along the path to the open space of the lawn out there—and the moon would not always be there, and the mask would break through the clouds, and—

They were rocking, lurching, twisting, swaying in their mad, angry struggle, and now they closed more widely, and branches snatched and tore at them, and broke and fell from the trees at the sides of the path. And here Locke gave a start, and the other, who was working nearer and nearer to the edge of the lawn.

And then suddenly there came a half-choked cry from the other. The man had tripped in the undergrowth. Locke swung his weight to complete the fall—tripped himself—and both, with their balance gone, fell, grumping the flower at each other, pitched headlong with terrific force into the trees at the side of the path.

And Locke was for an instant conscious of a great flood of streaks of fiery light that snore at his eyeballs with execrable pain—and then utter blackness came.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

Mrs. H. E. writes:

Will you tell me what causes a baby to have one or two front teeth? I have had four upper front teeth. They are so sore she cannot eat anything but soft, puréed food. Previously the end of her tongue was covered with white spots, which I bathed with borax and water, and since, this appears very red and sore. She has a feverish head at times and cries several times during the night. At 12 months she only had eight teeth, but now has 12.

Ought I to take her to a physician? The infant part of her gums have been during the night and morning. I should have written you before this.

Answer:

I am sorry you do not write me sooner, but feel sure that before you see this you will have taken the baby to a physician. The symptoms sound very much like scurvy, and in that case the cure will come from giving the child fresh oranges and tomato juice daily. She is evidently a baby who has been fed cooked foods to the exclusion of all fresh food. It may be an aggravated case of thrush. At any rate, it needs medical attention.

Mrs. D. D. writes:

My baby weighs 11½ pounds at birth and now, at five months, weighs 18 pounds and is 25 inches tall. She does not want any water, but wants to be nursed every half hour.

Answer:

In spite of her very good weight, no baby who is being nursed with her mother's milk will demand to be fed every half hour. I hope you are sensible enough to realize what a terrible thing this would be and insist on a three-hour nursing period, and, if necessary, a complimentary feeding of cows milk, in the proportion of half milk and half water, to be given after a nursing, so that the baby will be satisfied.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON. Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am a girl 19 years old. I have been going out with a young fellow four years my senior twice a week for four months. I like him very much as a friend. In fact I would not like to give him up. I have never in any way tried to chase after him or throw a hint about going out. He has always done the asking himself. He has never tried in any way to be familiar like a young man, but I refused, although I don't know why. Please tell me if it was all right for him to kiss me good night. He has asked to see me again. Always thought he did not care for me and how I should care.

BLIND EYES.

It seems to me evident that the young man does care for you. He has shown respect by most of my friends. I am deeply in love with a fellow about the same age as I am. At one time I thought he cared for me, but he has ceased to do so and is no longer interested in me. This makes me feel badly because he means the whole world to me.

Stories are going around that he gave me up on account of another girl—that she tried to stop our friendship from the start. Please advise me what to do. Don't tell me to forget him for that is impossible.

HEART-BROKEN.

It is useless to brood over your loss because you only make your self miserable and do not gain anything by it. No matter why the young man goes you up, there is nothing for you to do except to accept his decision. Do not place much importance on the stories you hear about the case. People do love to make an effort to get even, and when they aren't given any reason they surmise and start rumors without any foundation. If you want happiness, you will not let any one make an effort to forget the young man. Every day that you mope and suffer you are shutting out pleasures which might be yours for the asking.

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am a young girl in my last year at high school. I have never gone with the boys or had any desire to until lately. Now that I have become interested they think me bashful and very cold toward them.

How can I gain the friendship of boys? I dress well, am rather good-looking and am well posted on the topics of the day.

COULD LISTEN.

Your personality if you really make the effort. Speak cordially and go at least half way in making friends. If you fail to be pleasant to every one, girls as well as boys, your efforts will bring about results, and in time you will lose your reputation of being bashful and cold and will not want for friends.

ANSWERED LETTERS

G. K.—Sulphur will not cause hair to grow on face, as the suggestion for putting a small amount of it in cream to use for treating a pimple is all right. Continue the treatment to pimples and do not use the cream all over the skin. After using a cuticle remover, the skin throughout should have plenty of oil or cream worked into them, and if you do this you will not have this tendency to hang nails.

Ethelyn—Agar agar or any of the breakfast cereals in which there is bran will help your condition.

The pliconine tonic has some oil in it, but there are other ingredients that cut the oil. It will not affect the dye in your hair so the shade will be changed.

W. T.—Evidently you are not yet fully built up after the operation. Get out of doors as much as possible for your exercise and drink plenty of milk, especially hot milk before retiring. If you can take a quart of it at night it will do much toward filling out your muscles, and the lines will disappear at the same time.

M. R.—If the brown spots on your face are dark or of the nature of moles, have a skin specialist take care of them; but if they are light or shade, they are stains under the skin from some previous attack of liver trouble, and you may bleach them off by using peroxide of hydrogen or lemon juice.

R. M. K. PERRY D. Blue Eyes, A. A.—To reduce your double chin, throw your head far back and go through a heating motion for a few moments, or until you feel that the muscles have been thoroughly exercised. Massage with finger tips, beginning from tip of chin downward to the neck, always with a tendency to lift the (neal) muscles. Finish by rubbing the chin with a small piece of ice or by dashing very cold water over it.

R. L.—After removing blackheads, wipe the face with a solution of peroxide, but never squeeze the blackheads, as you are apt to bruise or even tear the skin. A few drops of peroxide in a basin of water makes a simple astringent, but it will not take the place of peroxide, as that is antiseptic.

P. L.—Lemon or cucumber juice will bleach off light cases of freckles.

S. M. J.—Henna is not harmful to the hair.

Reduce the thighs by taking squating exercises as follows: Hands on hips, one foot slightly in front of other, crouch so that knees will be at right angle with body, then rise to standing position. Repeat the crouching and standing positions until all muscles are fully exercised.

Tomorrow—Neat Looking Eyebrows.

Do You Have Pains in Your Side or Backache?

Here Is Something Worth Reading

Milwaukee, Wis.—"For many years after motherhood I suffered with backache and pains in my side and back. I was weak and almost down with nervous prostration. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it completely restored me to health and relieved me of my weakness. Favorite Prescription proved so very beneficial to me that when I came to middle life I took it again. It was the only medicine I took at that time and I came through the critical period in the very best of health. I am very thankful for what Favorite Prescription has done for me and I always recommend it to my friends."

cup white flour, one-half cup graham flour, two tablespoons fat, one egg, one cup sugar, one-half cup milk, two tablespoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup currants, one-half cup raisins, one-eighth cup citron. Beat thoroughly the fat, sugar, egg and milk. Add the dry ingredients and fruit. Drop with teaspoon on a baking sheet and bake about 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees).

Potatoes with Parmesan Cheese.—Beat two cups of freshly mashed and rice potatoes with one cup of good white stock, two egg yolks, one tablespoon of thick cream, salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste. When light pour into a shallow dish, sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese and bake in a moderate oven about one-half hour.

Creamed Carrots.—Scrape and slice one pound of young carrots. Cook with one cup of water, a little salt, one-half teaspoon sugar and two tablespoons butter until tender. Add two egg yolks, beaten and diluted in one-half cup cream. Season to taste with salt, pepper and nutmeg, and stir over very low heat until egg is set.

Roasted Raisin Bread.—Cut raisins bread (either white, graham or entire wheat) into very thin slices. Toast quickly, close to the heat if for plain toast; if to be crisp place bread some distance from heat and toast to brown on both sides. Spread evenly with butter while hot and serve at once.

When making a meat, chicken or deep fruit pie, put a cup in the center upside down before putting the crust on, and the juice will draw up in the cup and keep your crust dry and the bottom of the pie from getting soggy.

COUNTY Y. M. C. A. RENAMES OFFICERS

Inspiring Religious Talks Feature Annual Banquet at Clinton.

Community relationship with religious foundation was advanced during the annual Rock county Y. M. C. A. convention held in the Clinton Presbyterian church Monday night with 50 attending. The friendship making work of the rural Y. M. C. A. was reviewed and plans made for the extension of this service to Rock county.

Inspiring religious messages were given by Glenn D. Adams, Chicago Y. M. C. A., and Dr. Ralph Davis, of the Hyde Park Presbyterian church, Chicago.

"A man does not love his children until he is assured they are in the Kingdom of God," declared Dr. Davis. "Giving service to your community means the granting of something of value, effort and energy, without being paid for it. Any man is hitting on three cylinders without the favor of Christ and there is no substitute, not even including fraternal judges for the church of Jesus Christ."

Rural Y. M. C. A. Work. "The modern day takes more religion to get along," declared Mr. Adams. "There is friction from close contact with our neighbors, especially in the large cities. There is no distance superior to that devoted to our boys and girls. If the American government would take the millions spent in battleships and war preparation for missionary effort, we would be forever at peace and foreign friendship."

The various lines of Y. M. C. A. work in the county agricultural club work, township playdays, basketball and athletic events, campfire and group education work were detailed. The new budget calls for $6,000 with the county-wide campaign during the present week after a successful year's work on a budget of $4,600 obtained from pledges totaling $4,265.

Officers Elected.

The present officers, J. I. Green, president; J. A. Craig, Janesville, vice president; Dr. J. M. Babcock, Milton, recording secretary; and J. S. Pullen, Evansville, treasurer, were re-elected, with a representative finance committee composed of J. A. Craig, chairman, Nels Nelson, Edgerton; A. B. Axell, Evansville; Henry Anderson, Orfordville; H. O. Nateson, Clinton, named during the business meeting.

This is the 12th year of association work in Rock county, which has grown and developed to an important degree.

New members of those re-elected to the board of directors were J. A. Craig, George Austin, Rock Prairie; J. I. Green, Clinton; C. S. Middleton, Edgerton; Nels Nelson, Edgerton; Henry Anderson, Orfordville; and W.

J. Dougan, Beloit with the following advisory committee members, George Drafiel, Postville; Lloyd Porter, Fortville; Clifford Owens, Postville; W. E. Hallett, Orfordville; W. Hanson, Emerald Grove and Roy Cole, Newark.

Good Program Given. J. I. Green, Orfordville, opened the meeting and introduced E. O. Evans, Evansville, as toastmaster. A. E. Maunshausen, Clinton, led the community singing. The Milton college quartet played with several selections. Charles Cooper, one of the oldest members of the Y. M. C. A. groups in the county, gave the address of welcome and Henry Anderson, Orfordville, the response. The classes conducted by E. R. Sherwood, Madison, to more than 1,300 boys of the county, were praised by Nels Nelson and J. K. Arnold, county secretary. G. T. Longclum spoke of the township playdays which have been scheduled in 17 townships and are urged in the entire county. Harold Smith, Shropshire, told of the boys establishing a basketball court for a group in a discarded barn.

One of the championship Rock county junior club cups was presented to Dr. Davis. The toastmaster of the top place for having the best record book in all the junior clubs. The meeting was opened by a prayer by W. J. Dougan, Beloit.

An excellent banquet was served by the women of the church. Green's Fifth Term. Monday marked the end of the fourth year's service as president of the Rock county Y. M. C. A. for J. I. Green, Clinton, who was elected to that office after a year on the board of directors, to which he was elected in 1919. Mr. Green is a graduate of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, and president of the board of education, and has headed the committee in charge of the building of the new high school there.

Mr. Cooper has been connected with Y. M. C. A. work for the past 20 years, and has served as a member of the board of directors each year since the organization of the County Association, and has for the past several years been president of the Clinton association. He was one of those few who were identified with the volunteer work done in the village before the organization of a regular Y. M. C. A. and served on an advisory board with J. I. Green, father of the present county president.

Others connected with that first group are: H. A. Moenchow, Milwaukee; L. L. Olds, of the Olds Seed company, Madison; Mr. Naussbaum, Beloit; and H. O. Nateson, Clinton, present vice-president of the Farm Bureau.

Annual Report Submitted. The annual report of the county secretary, J. K. Arnold, was presented showing 11 communities in which Y. M. C. A. groups have been organized during the year, against 11 in which there are none. The expanding work can no longer be handled by a single secretary, the report stated, unless some groups are slighted. Already many groups are in need of closer supervision, which cannot under present conditions be given.

Sunday afternoon meetings were credited for much of the interest in association work this year. Problems and principles of group work were discussed by volunteer workers, and were followed by an inspirational address. Such work was carried on at Edgerton, Milton, Orfordville and Clinton.

In spite of almost impassable roads, the two basketball leagues, with 11 teams in all, had a very successful season, the report states. Organization of township play days this spring occupies a large part of the report, which states that at least 17 townships are now planning gatherings between May 15 and June 15, and it is expected 8,000 persons will participate. Other important subjects touched upon by the report are World Outlook work, agricultural club work, campfire, and the county older boys' conference at Evansville.

Salvation Army Head Backs Plans for New Quarters

Earl Jeffrey, divisional program director, was present at the monthly meeting of the Salvation Army advisory board Monday at 4:30 p. m. Plans for obtaining better quarters for the day nursery were considered, and the cooperation of headquarters by Mr. Jeffrey. The headquarters committee was instructed to proceed immediately to investigate residence properties suitable to house the day nursery and the Army officers, and submit a proposition to headquarters. If the present building cannot be disposed of, the plan is to divide the second floor into inexpensive apartments to be rented out, and rent out a portion of the first floor.

Activities for the month of April: Hours spent in visitation, 61; families visited, 40; meetings held, 28; bakery goods donated and delivered to 12 families; 26 meals given; 2 grocery orders; 105 garments; 22 pairs of shoes; 9 persons given lodging; 3 women given employment; day nursery attendance 348 for 29 days' operation; daily average 12 plus.

Children now being cared for in the nursery represent 19 families. Total number of families registered since the nursery opened in April, 1922, 225. Total number of children registered, 63.

Transportation to and from the nursery is being furnished for 11 children at a charge of ten cents per day. The income from this source was sufficient to cover the expenses for upkeep of the car during the month.

DECLINES WRIT IN WAUKESHA COURT

REPORTER'S CASE

Madison.—The supreme court today declined to issue a peremptory writ of mandamus which would have compelled Andrew Schneider, circuit court reporter at Waukesha, to show cause why he had not prepared certain court briefs.

The court thus declined to take jurisdiction in which is declared to be the first case of its kind ever to come before the higher tribunal.

Negligence on the part of the court reporter was claimed by attorneys who brought the case.

Read Particulars Regarding This Week's Contest

Surely you know of four or five people who have expressed a desire to buy a new or used car this spring.

The Janesville Gazette will pay a cash prize of ten dollars each week, for a limited time only, to the person sending in the largest list of prospective car buyers within the Janesville territory who have expressed a desire to purchase an automobile from one of these Janesville dealers.

The contestant must state specifically the make of car favored by the person on his list. He must be positive in this respect, because if more than one make of car is mentioned for the same person, but one will be counted. Name, address and occupation of party must be stated.

Make a list of these prospective automobile purchasers, and send it to the Auto Contest Editor of The Janesville Gazette this week. The current contest closes at six p. m., Saturday, May 3rd.

Lists will probably not be long ones, and in the event of a tie in the number of bona fide prospects, the award will be made to the person sending in first list received.

As an additional feature, these dealers will pay $10.00, providing the sale is made within 30 days, to the person bringing a prospective buyer to their sales rooms. They will do the actual selling.

Employees of The Janesville Daily Gazette and of these dealers cannot compete in this contest.

Worthwhile Tasks Are Promoted by Women's Clubs of So. Wisconsin

Women's clubs of southern Wisconsin have accompanied many worthwhile tasks during the past year. This fact was revealed in the reports given by delegates at the first congressional district federation convention in Edgerton last week. Very few clubs failed to report activities for community betterment or social welfare.

At the same time study programs of exceptional merit have been carried on by a majority of the clubs. Topics receiving the most consideration have been those pertaining to child welfare, citizenship and better homes. Programs of this type have been interspersed with the study of drama and art.

Group reading of plays produced in the best theaters of the country in recent years has proved both profitable and entertaining. No service rendered by the Free Traveling Library department has been of greater value to clubs than the loan of copies of plays for group and dramatic readings.

Many clubs have put on amateur dramatic productions and in this connection it is interesting to note that Mrs. O. C. Colony, Evansville, is the author of a little play produced by the Woman's Literary club in that city. This play and others by Mrs. Colony are to be made available to other organizations through the Gazette community department.

Whitewater Federation Flourishes. The Whitewater Federation of clubs presented one of the best reports heard at the convention. Its federation was celebrated its silver anniversary on May 12. Mrs. W. S. Watson is president. Nine clubs representing a membership of more than 500 women are included.

One of the most active rural clubs in the federation is the Neighborhood club of Linn. A new town hall with excellent community social center facilities, a farmer's club and boys and girls clubs are the result of efforts put forth by this club, whose president, Miss Florence Boyd was elected corresponding secretary.

The district federation by this year's convention. Four Give Scholarships. Scholarships for girls are being provided by women's clubs in four communities. The Ideal club, Waukesha, gave $150 to aid a deserving student to enter Carroll college this year. The City Federation of Janesville provides a $100 scholarship for the best all-around girl graduate of the high school who desires to attend college. The Edgerton Federation has provided in four communities. The ideal club, Waukesha, gave $150 to aid a deserving student to enter Carroll college this year. The City Federation of Janesville provides a $100 scholarship for the best all-around girl graduate of the high school who desires to attend college. The Edgerton Federation has provided in four communities.

Women Interest in Films. Mrs. H. A. Throckmold, Lake Geneva, chairman of the district committee on better films, reported a growing interest in this problem on the part of clubs. Local committees have been appointed in a number of communities for the purpose of censoring films and cooperating with theater managers in securing patronage for the better pictures. Club women and churches of Lake Geneva cooperate with the Y. M. C. A. in community motion picture programs of exceptional merit. The Burlington Woman's club has inaugurated children's matinees at which the best juvenile films have been presented.

Many clubs reported activities in the interest of child health work and infant welfare clinics. The Delavan Council of six clubs sponsored a lecture course the past winter and worked for a 100 percent vote at the spring election. The history club of Elkhorn has inaugurated a campaign to have free milk provided in the schools, worked for the election of a woman school board member and assisted the American Legion in furnishing a new hall.

That clubwomen are alive to the recreation needs of the younger generation was shown by the reports of many activities in this field. The Burlington Woman's club worked for improvements on the city hall terrace by providing a recreation center for boys. This club also worked for a park and other civic improvements. Menomonie Falls club raised $100 for the local library. Edgerton Federation provided tennis courts in the city park in response to a request from 45 high school boys.

Janesville and Beloit clubs reported a large amount of civic and benevolent work done during the year. Beloit club have well organized federations through which the community welfare projects are promoted.

HOWELL-BARKLEY BILL HAS SOLID BACKING OF LABOR

ers and employers will constitute the membership of the four national adjustment boards which are to settle grievances and conflicts of interpretations on rules. But the principal body, to be known as the board of mediation and conciliation, will consist of five members, all of whom will represent the public. This is directly in line with the recommendation of the late President Harding. For, at present, the railroad labor board consists of three representatives of the railway, two of labor and three of the public. This means that three men, representing the public, usually have the deciding vote, as almost invariably the parties at interest influence the votes of their representatives.

To cure this weakness, the representatives of the employers and employees will appear before the board of mediation as advocates and pleaders for their respective causes and the judgment will be rendered by five impartial judges.

How It Works
The four national adjustment boards are not to assume jurisdiction over disputes unless the employers or employees make application. This means that if a railroad employee and the railway employers can adjust working conditions and wages between themselves the adjustment boards will not come into the picture at all. There are certain company unions which are objecting to the Howell-Barkley bill on the ground that it is unnecessary, but the advocates of the measure say that a list of labor organizations do want such tribunals and the bill proposed to give them the machinery for adjustment which they seek.

The Howell-Barkley bill combines many of the features of the Newlands act, the Erdman act and the present transportation act. It has, however, introduced one important change which has been the basis of opposition by railway employers. It prohibits the employer from interfering in the selection of representatives of employees so as to dictate the selection of employee representatives.

Who? Is Answered
This has been questioned to overcome the embarrassment encountered by the present United States labor board in determining exactly who actually represents the employees on certain railroad systems. It is the outcropping of the old fight as between national labor organizations like the American Federation of Labor and such unions as have been fostered by the Pennsylvania railroad for its own employees. On the Pennsylvania, nobody can represent the workmen in a dispute except persons actually on the Pennsylvania's payroll.

The principal weakness of the present transportation act has been the failure of the parties at interest to form the local adjustment boards provided by law. These organizations were left to voluntary action by the employers and employees. Under the

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powles, Evansville, Receive Many Friends on Anniversary.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville.—In a home decorated with a bower of gold and rainbow colored flowers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powles Monday afternoon and evening welcomed their friends, upon the 50th anniversary of their wedding, which was held in the same city. On May 6, 1874, Miss Margaret Perry, Evansville, became the bride of Charles Powles of Kenosha, the officiating minister being Elder Craig of the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Powles, assisted by their daughter, Miss Mrs. Ernest Henderson, received their friends at their home on Liberty street. Dozens of roses, quantities of sweet peas, snapdragons, tulips, daffodils and Easter lilies filled the home. The bride wore a gown of gray and blue figured satin crepe. The groom was in black except for a white wedding vest. George Hatch's orchestra of Janesville furnished the music.

Friends Are Received.

ABOLISH DINING CARS
Brussels.—Pierior and dining cars have been taken off many Belgian trains as a step toward economy. This measure soon will be extended to all lines.

Howell-Barkley bill the adjustment boards would be government institutions and therefore the minor grievances and disputes which have piled up the cases before the United States railroad labor board would be diminished because they would, so to speak, be settled by the lower tribunals.

One Objection
One of the objections to the bill is the appropriation of $200,000 for the new machinery. The proponents of the bill point out that $400,000 is now being spent under the transportation act and that the additional $200,000 is good insurance against another railway strike, particularly since the bill points out that the cost of the government, about $2,000,000, while the railroads are known to have spent many times that sum in fighting it.

The proposed bill provides about $100,000 for the maintenance of the board of mediation, thus saving between $250,000 and $300,000 over the cost of the present labor board, which saving would be expended in the expense of the four national adjustment boards. Fully $5,000,000 is appropriated annually by congress for the interstate commerce commission, relatively speaking, the amount needed to keep peace between railroads and their employees is not as large as the sum needed to regulate disputes between the railways and shippers.

PLANET MERCURY WILL CROSS SUN WEDNESDAY P. M.

Williams Bay.—The planet Mercury will pass slowly over the sun on the afternoon of May 7, appearing as a small black dot on its brilliant surface when viewed with a proper telescope, but it will be invisible to the naked eye, announces Edwin L. Frost, director of Yerkes observatory here.

Since 1610, Mercury has crossed the sun 40 times. On May 7 it will be 51,850,000 miles from the earth and its angular diameter projected upon the sun will be about one one hundred and sixtieth that of the sun.

At 2:42.5 minutes, central time, the edge of the planet will touch the northeastern edge at a point 53 degrees from the north point of the sun's disk and it will move southwesterly across the sun.

Professor Frost explained that Venus also makes such transits but they have occurred but five times since the invention of the telescope.

Others who have expressed antagonism to the Klan are Ora D. Davis, republican mayor of Terre Haute, and George H. Durgan, mayor of La Fayette.

Candidates for seven of Indiana's thirteen congressional seats are unopposed.

Come in and See How the Chrysler Six Gets Its Power, Pull, Speed and Snap

Two of the Chrysler Factory Experts will be here Thursday to explain and demonstrate how and where the new Chrysler Six gets its power, pull, speed, and snap. You are cordially invited to go over this wonderful car with them, or sit behind the wheel and feel the exultation of driving it, yourself.

When you are running along at, say, 25 miles an hour in your Chrysler, just put on your four-wheel brakes. Pull it down to five miles an hour, to three. There isn't a tremor!

Or, in high speed, your Chrysler Six pulls away—gaining steadily. In no time your speedometer says 40; then 50; then 60, 65, 70, and more, and still without vibration!

That's the result of balance, elimination of friction, utilization of fuel, perfect carburetion and correctly applied thermo-dynamics—the result, in a word, of scientific engineering.

So here's what really scientific engineering means to you in the Chrysler Six:

Top speed well over 70 miles an hour.

Gasoline economy safely over 18 miles per gallon.

Lugging power on high that will take you through the deepest sand or mud, or take you up any hill a car can cling to.

In every detail of its design and materials, the Chrysler Six is just as fine as its performance. It is pre-eminently a quality light car. It could not be better if it sold for twice its list price.
